Biography

Comedian and writer Adrienne Chalepah began her career in entertainment in 2004 while attending college. In 2009, she graduated with a BA in Communications, Magna Cum Laude. Her comedy career took off when she teamed up with the popular comedy troupe, 49 Laughs Comedy. Featured in the Native Peoples magazine as the leading Native female comedian in America, a guest star on the late night television show The After After Party, and an opener for the First Lady Michelle Obama, Chalepah quickly gained momentum.

Chalepah has performed alongside comedy heavy hitters such as Margaret Cho, Dane Cook, and Ralphie May. In 2014, formed the world's only, all-indigenous, all-female comedy group, Ladies of Native Comedy.

Aside from comedy, Chalepah has a passion for writing, photography, editing, graphic design, and videography. You can read her work in the anthology Funny Girl, released in 2017.

adrienne made television history by becoming the first Native American to be cast on WeTV's hit show "Bridezilla's".
